

The Anthropology Graduate Student Association
Brown Bag Lunch Series

CRAFT BEER'S SCIENTIFIC BOUNDARIES: A BLACK DIGITAL ETHNOGRAPHY

February 14th | 12:00PM - 1:00 PM
Student Building, Room 159

PhD Candidate, Aaron Ellis

Aaron Ellis is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Anthropology and is an IU academic advisor in the departments of Human Biology, Religious Studies, and History and Philosophy of Science. Drawing from ethnographic and virtual ethnographic experiences and his own identity as a person of color, Ellis's research reveals how whiteness, maleness, and science are used to validate knowledge and produce boundaries in craft beer and beyond.