

Jennifer Midberry
Assistant Professor,
Media School

Lana Ruck
Editor At Large,
ScIU Blog

Public Scholarship Workshop

Learn How to Translate Research to Public Knowledge

Workshop open to graduate students and advanced undergraduates focused on translating your research into a 300-500 word high-quality blog post that can be published online.

Jennifer Midberry will lead a discussion of visual storytelling methods and Lana Ruck will discuss how to write for non-academic audiences.

All participants are encouraged to bring draft materials, something you would like to share with the public, such as a seminar paper, summer research findings, a side project, or thesis chapter.

Students researching Islam and Muslim communities around the world are especially welcome. The Muslim Voices Project may publish your post on our soon-to-be-launched blog and feature your work on our Twitter account with over 120k followers!

Friday | January 31 | 2 - 5pm

Global & International Studies Building | Room 3134

HAMILTON LUGAR

SCHOOL OF GLOBAL AND INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Center for the Study of Global Change